Please outline your experience:	Terrific customer service. I ordered at the boat show and was able to delay the delivery to ensure that I got fresh paint. It is absolutely the best anti foul I've used on the west coast of Scotland and I've used a few others in the past. I will continue to use and always recommend EU45.

Please outline your experience:	Great product which easily lasts in excess of the 12 months re-coating period. Fouling at the end of that time is minimal even in the high fouling area in which I cruise. Bill Robinson is always pleasant to deal with. I don't consider any other brand now.

Please outline your experience:	We usually sip the boat about July/August and give the antifoul a wipe down to remove any green growth that forms around the waterline and generally some small barnacles on the underside of the hull. The boat hull will still be pretty clean when we lift out in October. Yes, we are generally pretty happy with this Antifoul.

Please outline your experience:	Depends on location. Last applied in Atlantic Portugal and worked pretty well until encountering the waters of Mediterranean Spain where barnacles where the main problem. Had to switch to a more industrial harder product supplied by local yard which was more effective.

Please outline your experience:	Excellent product, with equally excellent customer service and product delivery. Unfortunately the product is no longer available in Spain as it was a vastly superior antifoul than those available in the local Spanish chandlers (& cheaper too!) so I can no longer use it on my Spanish yacht. I will continue to use it on my boat in Scotland however, and have recommended it to fellow boat owners.

Please outline your experience:	This antifouling with the added copper seems to be well suited to the marine algae etc which prevail in the Irish Sea and Liverpool Bay area. It does have a problem with the slime and a few mussels over the year which the boat is immersed.

Please outline your experience:	After some very disappointing experiences with other brands, it was refreshing to come across EU45. Portsmouth has had a barnacle problem that was exacipated by some out of sevice vessel. Since using EU 45, I have not had the huge infestations. Slime build up from the nutrient rich river water is a problem everyone has.

Please outline your experience:	Moved the yacht to a swinging mooring in Poole harbour 3 seasons ago and my old brand of anti fouling was disastrous requiring 2 diver scrubbing visits during the first season. Locals recommended black eu45 which has massively reduced the fouling for the last 2 seasons, so very happy - smooth hull and no more divers!

Please outline your experience:	have had our sailing yacht for 3 years now....used for racing from april to december....yacht sits in the marina and is lifted out the following march for clean down , inspection and anti foul. With the anti foul. performance is good up to the end of the sailing season and no significant growths of surface layerings at march lift out....maintenanc e is by use of a pressure clean on lift out, a light sanding and recoat with E45.....easy process recent brexit arrangements for northern ireland has not made life easier!

Please outline your experience:	Works very well protecting my clinker wooden hull and helps with some antifouling. It is as effective as any similar product and as it is allowed to be. It does not stop the growth on the hull when moored in Portsmouth Harbour over the summer but neither does any other antifouling system!

Please outline your experience:	Up until this year I have just used it on my keels as the boat had Coppercoat, plus a third on the waterline. Judging it. This was no longer effective so I have had the whole boat antifouled with EU45, which involved having the boat primed and 2 coats of EU45. Judging by the success on the keels in previous years I expect good results, in fact better than other makes I have used in the past, but as it was only done this week I await results with interest.

Please outline your experience:	We have only had our boat in the water for 2 months after our first application of EU45. The performance of our boat suggests that there is no growth on the hull and it is still clean. I will need some more time to see the full effectiveness of EU45 but so far I am very pleased.
